

Roosevelt Works On Plan to Boom Farm Goods' Use

Program Would Supplement Efforts of Agriculture Department to Boost Declining Prices, Aid Relief

Business Boost

Agriculture Officials Say Purchases Would Be Made Through Regular Channels

Washington, June 2 (AP)—President Roosevelt and his advisers are working on a plan, agriculture department officials said today, to use several hundred million dollars of relief funds to increase domestic consumption of surplus farm products.

The program, discussed at a White House conference this week, would have a two-fold objective: To supplement efforts of the agriculture department, through the new crop control law, to bolster declining prices of farm commodities.

To provide undernourished and underclothed relief and low income families with larger supplies of food and cotton products.

The proposal, if adopted, probably would expand activities of the federal surplus commodities corporation, which has been buying surplus perishable farm commodities to bolster prices.

Its purchases, which have been small compared to those contemplated under the new program, are distributed to needy families through relief agencies.

Through Regular Channels

Agriculture department officials said purchases would be made through regular trade channels, thus releasing funds more quickly to stimulate business.

This plan, officials said, was one of the reasons why President Roosevelt asked the senate yesterday to impose "no restrictions" to administration of relief funds provided in the $3,247,000,000 spending-levying bill.

The senate, working without a dinner recess last night, passed on numerous amendments to that measure. It adopted one by Senator Russell (D-Ga.) providing $12,000,000 for farm benefit payments in addition to the $500,000,000 already allotted under the 1938 crop control law.

Acting on another major amendment, the override recommendations of its appropriations committee and retained a house-approved allotment of $100,000,000 for the Rural Electrification Administration. The committee has suggested a cut to $25,000,000.

The senate reversed itself earlier in the day and increased the limitation on direct relief expenditures to $125,000,000. On Tuesday it had voted to hold that fund to $50,000,000.

It approved a committee amendment increasing the house-approved WPA allotment from $1,250,000,000 to $1,425,000,000. The additional money would carry the WPA until next March 1, instead of to February 1 as provided in the house bill.

Other congressional developments:

The senate-house committee chosen to draft compromise wage-hour legislation was called to hold its first meeting late this afternoon.

The house took up an administration proposal to increase the capital of the United States housing authority from $500,000,000 to $600,000,000.

A food and drug bill, revising the 1936 law, now house approved yesterday. The chamber override objections of Secretary Wallace to letting Federal district courts review his enforcement orders.

Both chambers approved compromise legislation authorizing new federal highway aid totaling $357,400,000 for the 1940-41 fiscal years. It goes to the White House.

Redeemer Host to 15 Churches for Anniversary Rites

Fifteen Lutheran Churches united in a 20th anniversary service in the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer on Wurts street on Wednesday evening when the address of the evening was delivered by the Rev. Dr. A. A. Zinck of Milwaukee, Wis. In addition to the three Lutheran churches of this city Lutheran churches in Saugerties, West Camp, Athens, Woodstock, Ellenville, Wurtsburg, Rhinebeck, Germantown, Red Hook, Manorville and Poughkeepsie, were represented at the service.

The Rev. Dr. Zinck taking his text from St. Luke 18:8—"Nevertheless, when the Son of man cometh, will He find faith in the earth?" spoke in part as follows:

"Whether Christian faith and the Christian Church will endure is a question of tremendous importance to every Christian, and one on which he should seek definite assurance.

"A glance at the world today with its uncertainty and disturbed conditions is certainly calculated to shake the Christian Church out of her complacency. Jesus Himself seems to have wondered how much faith would persist into the future.

"One is startled by the simultaneous..."

Detention Was Routine Quiz

Praha, Czechoslovakia, June 2 (AP)—Czechoslovak authorities explained today the five-hour detention of Miss Unity Freeman-Mitford, daughter of Lord Rededeale of England, and a friend of Chancellor Adolf Hitler, was but a part of the routine inspection of all travelers passing through military defense zones.

Miss Freeman-Mitford was stopped yesterday when she drove through a military protection area en route to Karlovy Vary.

Her companions were an American whose name was given as William F. Ruff, of Chicago, a Sudeten German deputy in the Czechoslovak parliament named Wolner and an unnamed British journalist.

Although Miss Freeman-Mitford was subjected to a thorough examination by Czechoslovak road patrols in the wee hours of the morning, the authorities denied reports that she was suspected of espionage and said she was not arrested.

They said three cameras, four film strips and a notebook were confiscated.

Scouts March on Memorial Day

The massed colors of several scout troops added a colorful touch to the Memorial Day parade on Monday. This parade was one of the largest ever held in Kingston. Scouts will march again this week-end as a part of the huge Camp-o-ree on the Armory grounds off Manor avenue, an encampment which is expected to draw between 700 and 800 boys. The affair takes place Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Delegates Divide Over City Freedom From State Laws

Differences Forecast One of Convention's Major Debates—Adoption of Embodying Measure Likely

Albany, N. Y., June 2 (AP)—Constitutional Convention delegates divided sharply today over the question of freedom for cities from mandatory state legislation even as friends and foes of greater home rule came here to express their view at a public hearing.

The differences presaged one of the convention's major debates, but Republican and Democratic leaders expressed belief something would be done on the subject before the final gavel falls—probably the adoption of a measure embodying the best of the half dozen plans now before the delegates.

Conservative Republicans from upstate districts remained hesitant about removing too much of the restraining influence of the legislature from upstate communities, reliable sources said, while some New York city Democrats are opposed to giving greater powers to Mayor La Guardia as proposed by a measure sponsored by Manhattan Republican Joseph Clark Baldwin.

La Guardia will appear personally at another public hearing tomorrow to give his views on the proposed amendments along with spokesmen for the mayors of Albany, Buffalo and Syracuse and the city manager of Rochester.

Support for broader home rule, giving municipalities absolute authority to administer local affairs without interference of the legislature or the governor is likely to come from a nucleus of New York city Republicans and a group of independent Democrats.

The public hearing (12:30 p. m. E. S. T.) featured the convention's first working day of the week, otherwise devoted to the reporting to the floor of three proposals designed to repeal obsolete provisions dealing with issuance of state bank notes.

Chairman W. Kingsland Macy of the Civil Service committee fixed Tuesday, June 21, for a public hearing of all Civil Service proposals before his group, including controversial measure designed to give World War veterans and nurses preference in Civil Service without regard to their standing on lists from which appointments are made.

Japanese Airplanes Raid South China, Gain on Lunghai

Shanghai, June 2 (AP)—Warplanes of the army of Nippon again spread a trail of destruction today through towns and villages along the Lunghai railway, and Japanese said they enabled their columns to make important gains.

The Japanese announced they had occupied a corner of Kibien, 20 miles south of Lanfeng, after an hour's fight. Chinese held gun positions north of Kibien were damaged heavily.

For two weeks, the Japanese have been fighting for staunchly defended villages about Lanfeng, railway station on the Lunghai on the westward route to Chengchow, whence they hope to turn southward in a mass offensive against Hankow, China's provisional capital.

One Japanese detachment claimed occupation of Luyi, 15 miles west of Pobsien, thereby helping to straighten the 75-mile crescent-shaped front running south from Lanfeng.

Japanese planes concentrated on towns back from the railway night-of-way a 600 ft. Lanfeng, where Chinese said they still were holding firm.

Capture by Chinese of three villages north and east of Lanfeng kept Japanese from lifting the siege of the division commanded by Lieutenant General Kenji Doihara, the defenders said.

A Chinese motor unit of 4,500 men fought one of the bitterest battles of the day 20 miles west of Kweihai, another Lunghai railway point in Hoan Province. The Chinese were reported routed.

The Japanese aerial offensive continued also in South China, and the Canton railway got another of its daily bombardments. A trainload of gasoline was said to have been exploded by the attackers, contributing to a rupture in traffic.

From Chefoo came reports of a speeding up of military activity, with Japanese marines maneuvering against Chinese irregulars. Cruisers in the harbor and airplanes aided the marine offensive, shelling Fushan, ten miles west of Foochow.

Three Chinese gunboats at Foochow have been sunk the past two days. The gunboat crews reached shore safely.

Deer Twins, Triplets

Buffalo, N. Y., June 2 (AP)—Because food and cover are plentiful deer are giving birth to twin and triplets in Cattaraugus county, William E. Trilman, district game protector, asserted today.

British Begin New Diplomatic Push To Preserve Peace

Neville Chamberlain Sets Machine at Work in Four Major Trouble Spots to Keep War on Leash

London, June 2 (AP)—Neville Chamberlain, this week starting his second year as Britain's premier, was reported today to have ordered a fresh burst of diplomatic activity in Spain, Czechoslovakia, Germany and France to restore and keep European peace.

The cabinet was understood to have approved his two-fold plans: To bring the Spanish government and Spanish insurgents together in a roundtable peace conference, a course which unconfirmed reports said Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy already had approved.

Negotiations of a solution of the difficulties between the Czechoslovak government and its minority of Sudeten Germans who have pledged "protection" of Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany.

The government's hope of mediating the Spanish Civil War, which will have been drawn out for two years on July 18, was based on the 27-nation non-intervention committee.

The belief in influential quarters that many Spaniards on both sides of the conflict are sick of war and would welcome a peace parley.

Definite signs of progress toward obtaining withdrawal of foreign volunteers fighting in the war.

The latter question was scheduled for discussion again at today's session of the 27-nation non-intervention committee.

Soundings at Burgos.

Soundings on a peace conference were understood already to have been made both at Burgos, seat of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's insurgent government, and at Barcelona, Spanish government capital.

Foreign Minister Viscount Halifax was reported to have reviewed the question with the Spanish ambassador, Pablo de Azcarate Y Florez, last night.

The French foreign minister, Georges Bonnet, was said to have discussed the same question with the Spanish ambassador in Paris.

Some quarters said Britain favored as a possible basis for a peace parley the 13-point program for the Spain of the future advanced May 1 by Premier Juan Negrin of the Spanish government.

This program included a guarantee of civil, social and religious liberty, assurance of the absolute independence of Spain from foreign powers, riddance of foreign military forces, agrarian reforms to eliminate feudal aristocratic landowners, a guarantee of workers' rights through social legislation and full amnesty for all Spaniards who cooperated in reconstruction.

The British government, in order to work out its plan, was prepared to advocate formation of a post-war Spanish government from among men who have taken no active part in the bitter conflict.

Mother Begs for Daughter.

Bradford, Pa., June 2 (AP)—To-day, the fifth birthday of blue-eyed, red-haired Marjory West, who disappeared mysteriously on a Mother's Day picnic 25 days ago brought a tragic "last plea" from her distressed mother.

"Won't you return Marjory to me," she begged Mrs. Mary West, in a broadcast to Shirley M. West, in a broadcast to the person who picked her up.

Friends of the family said they knew of no tangible clues indicating the girl had been kidnapped, despite a hunt led by 100 state motor police and joined in by several thousand volunteers.

Kingston Business Men to Close Stores For the Big Parade

Stores Will Be Closed Monday, June 13, in Order That Employees Might Witness Knights Templar Parade

Cooperating with the Knights Templar state convention which will be held in Kingston June 12, 13 and 14, the Kingston Business Men's Association voted unanimously this morning to close their stores at 2:45 o'clock on Monday afternoon, June 13, in order that their employees might witness the big parade which will form at 2:30 o'clock on the streets adjacent to Academy Park and proceed down Broadway to East Chester street promptly at 3 o'clock. Closing their stores 15 minutes before the start of the parade will give the employees an opportunity to seek a vantage point to see one of the biggest parades which Kingston has ever witnessed.

At the meeting of the Business Men's Association at the Governor Clinton Hotel Herbert Thomas and the Rev. Clarence Brown spoke relative to the convention. Mr. Thomas spoke of solicitation of funds to defray the expenses and the Rev. Mr. Brown told of the elaborate plans for the convention and parade.

At least 5,000 to 5,999 Knights will be in line for the biggest parade Kingstonians have had an opportunity to witness in many years. There have already been 11 bands and musical organizations booked. Promptly at 3 o'clock the parade will proceed down Broadway to East Chester street, where there will be a massing of colors and other paraphernalia after which the parade will return to the Municipal square.

Ship Designer Dies

Capt. N. Herreshoff Dies, Ill One Year; Built Great Boats

Graceful Yachts and Fast Torpedo Boats Earned Him Reputation as One of Foremost Architects

Providence, R. I., June 2 (AP)—Captain Nathaniel Greene Herreshoff, known in the yachting world as "The Wizard of Bristol" for his designing and building of America's Cup defenders, died early this morning at his Bristol home. He was in his 81st year and had been ill for a year.

Swift, graceful racing yachts and fast torpedo boats turned out from his family's shipyard at Bristol, R. I., made for "Old Nat" Herreshoff a reputation that placed him among the foremost of the world's naval architects.

He contributed much to efficient application of steam power to warships and commercial vessels, gave the yachting world the "fin keel" type of racer and at various times virtually revolutionized yacht construction. From 1932 to 1939 inclusive he designed all the defenders of the America's Cup.

Yet when in 1922 he was made an honorary member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, he was lauded as "a man who never patented an invention or design, but willingly gave them to the world."

Born To Shipbuilding.

He was born to his profession for he was a descendant of Charles Frederick Herreshoff who emigrated from Germany in 1799 and married a daughter of John Brown, one of Rhode Island's largest ship owners. Since then the family has been associated with ship building and the sea.

Nathaniel Greene Herreshoff was born in Bristol, March 18, 1858, and resided almost his entire life close to the shipyard from whose ways slid vessels that made his name known wherever swift ships attracted attention. He attended Massachusetts Institute of Technology 1886-63, worked for a time at Providence but soon left that job to join his brother John in a shipyard which the latter had established in the early '80s. Nathaniel was superintendent of the plant 1881-1915 and thereafter president of the firm.

Justice Foster Hands Down Decision Dismissing Action Brought by Boston Man to Recover $270,000

The Memorandum

Alleged There Had Been an Oral Agreement to Sell Real Property for $225,000

Supreme Court Justice Sydney F. Foster on Tuesday handed down a decision granting the motion of Attorney Andrew J. Cook to dismiss the complaint in the action brought by Bernard F. Tully of Boston against Margaret T. Gorman of Kingston and Rose & Gorman, Inc., to recover $270,000 for alleged breach of contract.

The action grew out of an alleged agreement made by Mrs. Gorman to sell the Rose & Gorman estate and business to Mr. Tully, who represented a national organization.

Tully alleged that there had been an oral agreement on September 26, 1936, between himself and Mrs. Gorman, to sell the real property for $225,000 and it was also agreed, as alleged, that the corporation would sell the stock and fixtures for $160,000. These prices Mr. Tully claimed were for the business as a going concern.

Later, the complaint alleged, Mr. Tully learned that the stock had been sold to Montgomery Ward & Co., under a 21 year lease, for $20,000 a year and that the stock and fixtures had been sold to the Jacobs Associates.

Mr. Tully claimed that the business as a going concern was worth $600,000. He also alleged that he spent $5,000 in investigations and negotiations, preparing to carry out the deal.

The action was brought by Mr. Tully in April of this year, N. LeVan Haver appearing for the plaintiff. On April 22 Attorney Andrew J. Cook appeared before Justice Foster at Monticello, in special term and presented arguments on a motion for dismissal of the complaint. Mr. Cook argued that the complaint failed to state grounds for a cause of action, that the action was unenforceable under the statute of frauds in that there had been no legal written contract or memorandum for sale of the real property, nor any legal agreement as to the proposed sale of the personal property; further that that allowing that there had been such agreement on the part of Mrs. Gorman it had never been accepted by Mr. Tully.

In the memorandum accompanying his decision Justice Foster said:

This is a motion by the defendants to dismiss the complaint herein, and the first, second and third causes of action therein set forth, on the ground that the contract on which such actions are founded is unenforceable under the statute of frauds (Rule 107, Rules Civil Practice).

Written Memorandum

The only written memorandum to support the alleged agreement is as follows:

"184 Albany Ave., Kingston, N. Y. September 27, 1936.

Mr. B. F. Telly

1 Beacon street, Boston, Mass.

Dear Mr. Telly,

This is to confirm our agreement of Saturday, September 26. The price for the building and real estate is $225,000. The price for the stock, fixtures and service supplies is $160,000. The stock is insured on the inventory of July 1 with adjustment made for all purchases and sales during the ensuing months up to this date.

Accounts receivable are not included in the foregoing figures. A satisfactory agreement for the purchase of these assets can be arranged.

May I request, for obvious reasons, that you address all communications to me at my above home address.

Very truly yours,

M. T. GORMAN.

(Mrs.) Margaret T. Gorman."

This memorandum does not contain the essential terms of a contract. There is neither identification of the proposer, nor of the proposed sale. This might not be fatal, because under some circumstances parol proof may be introduced to show the status of the parties, or that one party acts for an undisclosed principal (Lerand Corp. vs. Meltzer, 267 N. Y. 243), if there was any identification of the property, but such identification is missing also. It is true that extrinsic circumstances may be shown by parol evidence as to the situation of the parties with respect to land when that course will definitely ascertain the property to which

Probes Investment Trusts

New York, June 2 (AP)—Financial circles today were stirred by reports there would be further indictments in District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's investigation of a ring which he charged pyramided $5 into control of investment trusts with assets of $16,000,000.

Six indictments were announced yesterday by the district attorney, who denounced the alleged looting of seven investment trusts by the group as "the biggest financial steal in years."

The ring leaders, Dewey said, devised a method whereby investment trusts were made to pay for their own acquisition and stripping.

The only original expenditure, he said, was the $5 spent to incorporate a Canadian holding company, the Fiscal Management Co., Ltd.

As explained by Dewey, the system involved the wasting of about three dollars out of every four of the investment trusts' assets. The "looters," he said, substituted worthless securities for marketable securities to repay the money they had borrowed to purchase control.

Dewey estimated the net yield to the ring leaders was about one quarter of the assets—roughly $4,000,000—plus "commissions" of more than $400,000 he said they paid themselves.

Four of the six men indicted—all of whom deny guilt—have been arrested on 10 felony counts which would carry possible total maximum penalties of 120 years in prison for each man if convicted.

Those arrested include a New York attorney, two Boston attorneys, and a Washington, D. C., broker.

The Boston attorneys, Ralph H. Robb, 47, and Thomas W. Morris, 41, said they would fight extradition. The other attorney, Vincent Ferretti, is held here in $25,000 bail.

Freed in Washington on $5,000 bail, Philip A. Frear, 44, said he had "nothing to conceal and am advised that no action need be feared on my part, whatever may be the facts as regards others."

Two other men, as yet unnamed publicly by Dewey, are being sought by police, the district attorney indicated.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JUNE 2, 1938

STATE IMPORT TAXES

Ohio wine growers are worrying about imports from California and are urging the state legislature to impose a prohibitive tax on them. Last year, they say, California shipped in 2,600,000 gallons of wine and sold it cheap "to kill their market." They propose to tax all wine from other states 50 cents a gallon. Several states are said to have imposed such state tariffs, and a similar measure is pending in New York.

This may seem a reasonable proposal, to many citizens reared in the American tradition of protective tariff. It is only of late years, however, that such barriers have been erected, or sought, except against foreign countries. Have states really a legal right to impose interstate tariffs? A layman would suppose not, from the clause in the Federal Constitution which says that no state shall tax imports or exports "without the consent of Congress," but he might be wrong about it.

As a matter of practical expediency, regardless of law, it is an open question whether any state can benefit, in general and in the long run, by such tariffs, even if they are constitutional. What would happen to American business if all the states started imposing all kinds of tariffs on each other's products? Michigan and Indiana have had some disillusioning experiences along that line.

TOWN WITHOUT POLITICS

Mayor Hague of Jersey City is not the only unusual phenomenon in the state of New Jersey. Equally worthy of note—and more worthy of national approval—is the Glen Ridge, N. J., Conference Committee which has just marked its twenty-fifth anniversary.

The committee is a nonpartisan organization dedicated to the cause of filling the municipal offices with well-qualified candidates. It was founded a quarter of a century ago by a Democratic editor and a Republican industrial executive. Today the committee of 24 comprises four members each from the Women's Club, the Republican Club, the Democratic Club, the Home and School Association, the South End Association and the Battalion Forum.

The committee names a municipal slate in which political considerations play no part. Since its establishment, the committee has always been upheld in its choice by both major parties. Glen Ridge officials, it may be assumed, run the town's affairs honestly and efficiently. Without adopting a city manager form of government the local citizens seem to have attained some of its objectives.

APPRECIATIVE CITIZEN

An 81-year-old woman received her final citizenship papers in Pittsburgh the other day. She came to this country as an immigrant 46 years ago because she wanted to be an American. Somehow she failed to learn that women, as well as men, must take out citizenship papers if they wish to make the country their own. When she learned, as an old woman, that she had not automatically become an American, she immediately set about taking the required steps toward that end.

What difference could it possibly make to such an elderly person whether she was legally a citizen? For more than 40 years she had lived here happily and doubtless could continue to do so for her few remaining years. She had a reason, however, which she told to the judge when she appeared in Federal court for her final papers. "I want to die an American," she said. A native American must recognize in that simple statement much unspoken loyalty to the land of her choice and a genuine understanding of its ideals of freedom and opportunity.

AIRPLANE DANGERS

Airplanes are being made larger and larger, increasing steadily in power, carrying capacity and speed. This tends to greater efficiency in service. And designers say that big planes are safer than little ones. They doubtless know. Yet it seems to be true alike of men and planes that "the bigger they are, the harder they fall." There have been two great air tragedies in the last few weeks, one in California and the other in Ohio, in which great, modern airplanes have crashed to the earth in normal weather without any adequate explanation, utterly destroying ships, passengers and crew.

Such disasters, because they are so startling, naturally give a false impression of the perils to which a passenger subjects himself. Crashes are very infrequent compared with the total number of flights and the mileage flown. There may be a million miles or more to one disaster. And since there are risks not only in all kinds of transportation, but even in remaining at home in bed, it can be argued logically that it is foolish to be frightened out of flying because there is an occasional accident.

Yet it is evident that some problems of aerial mechanics and safe flight are not yet solved. Too much still depends on the perfect coordination of a pilot's mind and body, on sound judgment, on the perfection of land communication with flying planes, on motors and instruments and body structure and mechanism. The best experts in the world are at work continually on these problems.

COUNTY TRAFFIC CONTROL

Police officials of a midwestern city and its suburbs have decided to combine efforts in the cause of safety. As a starter they are drawing up a bicycle code to be adopted by all the municipalities in the county. It is expected to provide a uniform system of licensing and regulating bicycle operation, with penalties for violation of traffic rules, and a requirement that riders under twelve years keep to the sidewalks and off the streets.

The bicycle is such a convenient and wholesome means of individual transportation and recreation that there is no thought of banning it outright. But misuse of bicycles has become so dangerous to riders themselves, and to others in traffic, that strict regulation is necessary. With greater foresight at the beginning of the automobile and highway expansion period, the authorities might have built footpaths and bicycle paths along all roads when the roads were paved and widened. Lacking such separation of big and little, swift and slow traffic, other safety precautions must be taken now.

Someone wants to know what five people run this country. Offhand, you might say the President, Chief Justice Hughes, Emily Post, Ely Culbertson and the cop on the beat.

USUAL SIGNS OF HEART DISEASE

Now that it is known that a heart murmur may not be a serious condition, many nervous individuals are thinking about other heart symptoms—rapid heart beat, getting out of breath easily, pain over the heart under the breast bone, or perhaps high blood pressure. These are all symptoms of a failing heart, but a failing heart is not the only condition that may cause these symptoms.

Getting short of breath may be caused by eating too much acid food—meat, eggs, bread, or by an obstruction in the nose or throat which interferes with air passing to and from the lungs.

Rapid heart beat and a rise in blood pressure can be caused by excitement or other emotional disturbance or by simply eating a heavy meal.

The pain in the region of the heart or under the breast bone can be caused by pressure of gas in the stomach or by a cold, strain, or infection of the chest muscles—pleurisy or false pleurisy—or by pleurisy itself.

It can thus be seen that some of the "regular" symptoms of heart disease can be caused by simple or harmless conditions.

Of course, if an individual is in doubt about his heart he should go to his physician or to a heart specialist as the latter has not only the electrocardiograph equipment which records the regularity and strength of the heart beat, but he has the X-ray outfit which enables him (by means of the fluoroscope) to actually see the size, position, and beating of the heart.

However, if the pain in the chest is like a vise, a squeezing or tightening pain, which comes on during exertion or after eating a heavy meal, the blood pressure is "always" high, the heart beat is always irregular and fast, sometimes strong and sometimes weak, perhaps some swelling of the feet, to all of which symptoms there is added breathlessness on slight exertion, it is likely that true or organic heart disease is present.

Even with any or all of these symptoms the patient can live for many years by simply living within his strength. Living within his strength means avoiding heavy exercise, avoiding heavy or large meals, and keeping free of excitement.

A heavy meal increases the work of the heart by fifty per cent. Emotional disturbances such as anger or fear increase the work of the heart at least 25 per cent.

OCTAGON HOUSE

BY PHOEBE ATWOOD TAYLOR

The Story So Far: Assey Mayo, Cape Code detective, is investigating yesterday's murder of Marina Lorne, whose husband's post office mural has aroused curiosity. She was killed by a left handed blow from her sister's knife and Pam Frye is suspected. Pam appears after hiding $50,000 worth of emeralds she found. Assey knows someone is after the emeralds and he is trying to locate it. Then Jack Lorne brings startling news. He has discovered he was never married to Marina because she was already married to agreeable Tim Carr, boarder at the Octagon House, whom she was blackmailing. She was also playing around with Roddy Strutt, whose plane crash furnished a suspicious alibi. Peggy Boone, an artist, seems worried about Pam's arrival.

Chapter 24

A Questionin' Fire

"SAY," the trooper who had been at the front of the house, walked up to them. "Say, I can't find Shorty or O'Malley—you seen 'em? They ought to be around. The car's here. But I can't find 'em."

"Been back in the woods?" asked Assey.

"Say, I been all over." "Probably they're after the Carrs and Aaron Frye," Assey said. "I wouldn't worry. Now listen, they're having a real riot up town. I want you to get your car and go find Hanson, and tell him to get fire trucks from other towns, and use the hose."

"But Shorty and O'Malley—I got to find them. And I can't leave this place."

"Well, look after things here," Assey said. "You got get Hanson. I'll find your friends. You got along. That's an order. If you feel better, I outrank Hanson in an honorary way. An I'm an honorary officer of the law of this town, accordin' to a piece of paper I got to home. You go on. I'll take the responsibility."

"Well, okay. But I'd like to know where Shorty and O'Malley are," the trooper said. "I don't see where they could be. You find 'em, will you? I'm worried."

Assey promised, and the trooper went off reluctantly to his car. "Against his better judgment, I know, I well, well, look at precious!"

She pointed to Emma Goldman, strolling majestically out of the woods, her leash trailing behind. "Run away, huh?" Assey said. "Hi, Emma. Where's your folks? Come here 'fore you get caught up with that leash."

The cat walked up to him and rubbed her head against his trouser leg. "Funny," Peg Boone leaned down and stroked the cat's head. "She seemed frightened. Isn't this odd, everyone missing? Shouldn't we yell in chorus? O'Malley!" she yelled at the top of her voice. "Shorty! Aaron Frye! Carrs!"

Assey laughed. "You raised someone," he said. "I hear—oh, Mrs. Carr."

She panted up to them. "Have you seen Emma—oh, thank goodness! Something frightened her, and she ran like a streak. Pulled the leash square out of my hand. I never knew her to—"

"Where's Tim?" Assey asked. "And Aaron?"

"Aren't they here?" Mrs. Carr asked in some surprise. "They aren't? Aaron wandered off, and Tim went home—long ago."

"Have you seen two cops, named O'Malley and Shorty?" Assey asked. "No, I haven't seen anyone. Except a skunk, after Emma left. And two squirrels. All the animal life seems to be in a perfectly terrible rush this evening. I don't know whether Emma got her fright from them, or they got it from her—stop tugging, Emma! Look at her ears! Listen."

"I don't hear anything," Peg said. "Do you, Mrs. Carr?"

Assey motioned for her to be still. "Something queer," he said. "It's a rushin' sound, seems like. I'll walk around 'ack by the barn, an' see what I can see."

"Emma!" Mrs. Carr said in exasperation as Assey hurried off. "Emma, what in the world is the matter?"

"Gosh!" Jack Lorne said. "Gosh, look—look at that barn!"

Flaming Like A Torch

PEGGY BOONE raced after him around to the back of the house. The scene before her brought her to a standstill.

Some 150 feet from the Octagon House, the old octagon barn was flaming like a piece of cotton wool dipped in gasoline. She had never seen anything so completely and so furiously on fire. Assey and Jack Lorne, both choking, ran up to where she stood.

"Phew!" Assey said. "Phew! I was just going to save that thing from door open when the whole thing went—phew! I kind of wonder that I got a face."

"Don't tell me!" Jack said. "I saw you. One minute the barn was all right—the next split second it was a torch! Can't we do something? What'll we do? We've got to do something—"

"What did Assey mean by 'a questionin' fire?' Continued tomorrow."

"Like what?" Assey inquired. "Put it out! Call help—hurry, come on, we've got to do something!" Jack said excitedly. "This house," Assey pointed out, "has only got a pump. The water system at your house is on the blink. The fire truck's out of commission up with the town riot. So's the phone. What can you do?"

"We can't just sit!" Peggy protested. "Maybe you can't," Assey returned, "but that's what I'm going to do. That barn's tinder, pure an' simple. It'll be down in five minutes. It's even hot here. We better move up onto the porch."

"But the house!" Jack said. "Suppose the house should catch?" "S'posin' it does?" Assey said.

Jack Lorne looked at him in amazement. Had Assey Mayo forgotten that Pam's emeralds was in the Octagon House somewhere? For a man who was supposed to be so clever, Jack decided Assey Mayo was pretty dumb. Stupid.

"He started to say so, but Assey's wide-mouthed yawn knocked him into silence."

"Heat," he remarked, "always makes me awful sleepy. You see now why the cat was in such a fidget. She seen skunk—an' squirrels runnin'. Probably there was dozens of animal livin' in that old ark. When the fire started, they beat it. Emma seen 'em, an' city cat that she is, she knew enough to run."

"I don't believe it!" Peg insisted. "Didn't you ever see a forest fire, with all the animals runnin' from it?" Assey asked. "Fire panics 'em. Say, you know I wouldn't wonder if maybe perhaps this house didn't catch, at that. It's kind of warm'n' up in sympathy, sort of."

"Aren't you going to do anything?" Peg demanded. "Are you just going to sit there? We must do something—something! They always drape wet blankets around when there are fires like this, over my way. Shouldn't we?"

"With in' With Disappointment!" "IF THIS was a proper an' logical Cape house," Assey said, pulling out his pipe, "we could dabble an' dabble around with wet blankets on the far roof. But it ain't a logical house."

Jack said. "If worse comes to worse," Assey said, "we'll salvage silver an' books an' things. It's the heck of a pity that Aaron Frye can't be around to tell us what he treasures the most. You know, I remember once in Wellfleet nearly scorched my hide off to save some old pewter plates an' a couple of fiddleback chairs an' a stack of silver, all for an old aunt of mine when her house burned. At that woman, she laid me out in lavender. What she wanted, an' what I didn't save, was the old wooden spoon she stirred batter with. There goes the roof—watch!"

The octagonal barn swiftly reduced itself to a mass of charred embers. Without quite understanding why, Peg and Jack found themselves assuming his manner of fact and philosophical attitude. Neither of them noticed his preoccupation with the woods around the barn.

"There," Assey said at last, "that's the end of that. Wonder if Frye had insurance?"

"Probably not," Peggy said, "unless Pam thought about it. Assey, why didn't anyone come to see this fire?"

"The other show's be givin' us too much competition," Assey said. "Well, I guess this concludes the performance."

"Performance is right!" Peggy interrupted. "Do you realize that we sat—sat, and never lifted a finger? Assey, what did it start?"

"What a horrid thought!" Assey said, the shadow of a smile playing around the corners of his mouth. "Set! Tsh, tachi! Why, barns—including octagonal barns—were burned every day. Set? My, an' there we never lifted a finger, never did a thing we was s'posed to do. Just twiddled our thumbs. Someone's probably writin' a disappointment out there. In fact, someone's there. I'm sure. But I'm guessin' about the writin' part."

"What are you talking about?" Lorne demanded. "What do you mean, someone set the barn on fire? Why? Who? What for?"

"It was a questionin' fire," Assey said. But it didn't get answered. Assey was silent. Now, if you two'll be good enough to hold the fort—"

"Where are you going?" Peg asked. "I'm going to re-noirre," Assey said. "You an' Jack are herewith pro tem. deputies, or somethin'. Anyway, you stay here, you stay put right here, no matter what you think, or feel insatiable to do. See?"

"The writin' part, there was something in Assey's voice that forbade any questioning."

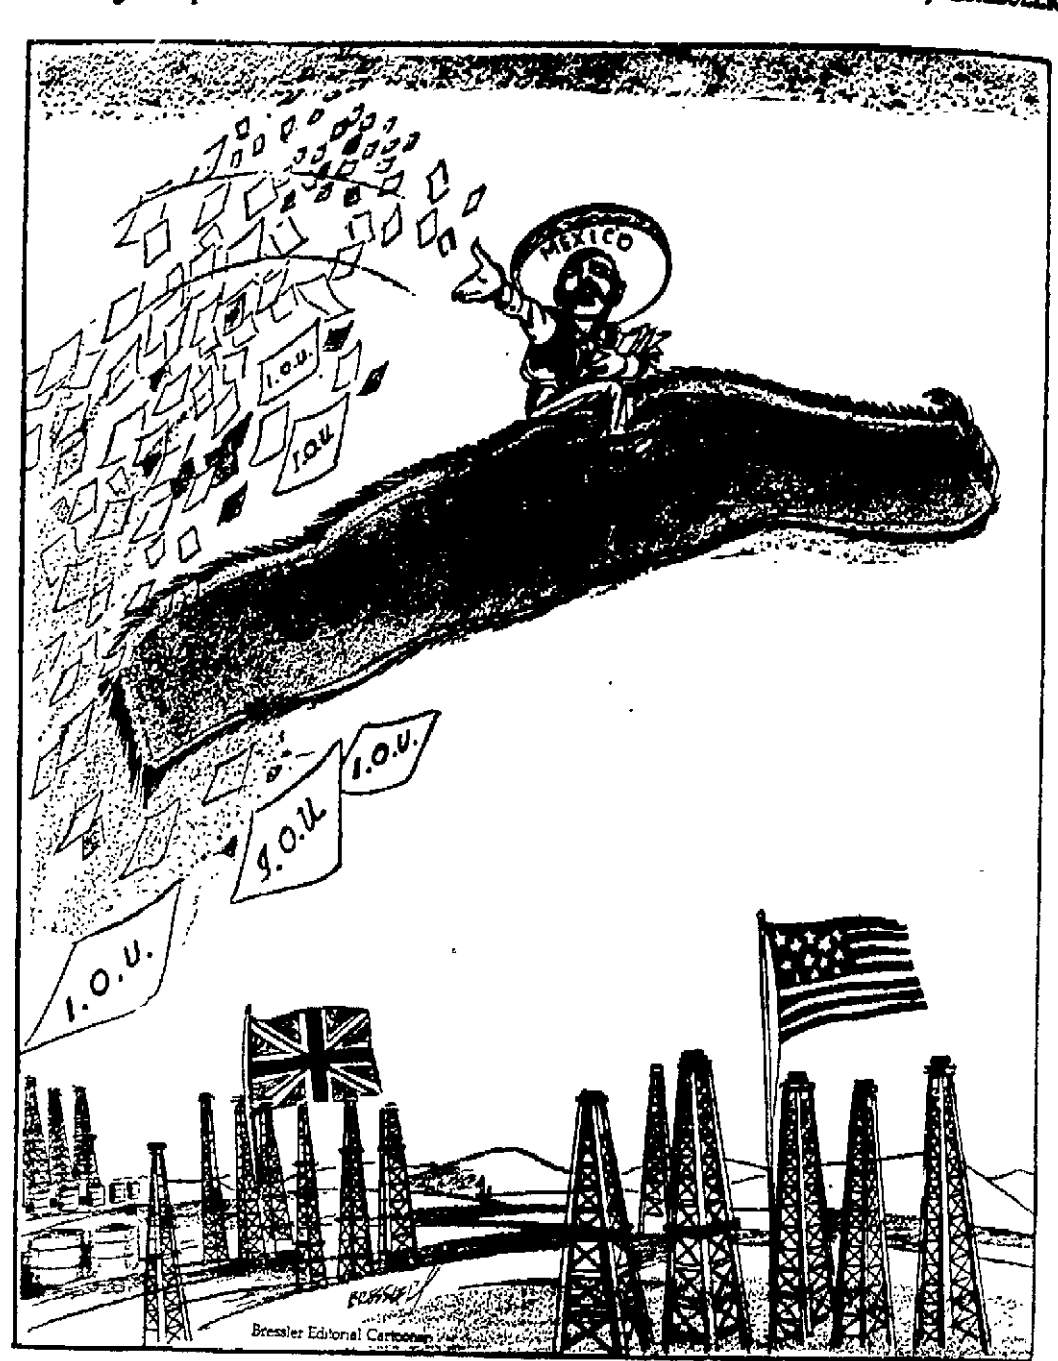

"Okay," Assey said. "an' hang onto the Carrs, please, if you have to hang on to their shirt tails."

He stroled off past the smoldering barn to the woods beyond.

What did Assey mean by "a questionin' fire?" Continued tomorrow.

The "Magic Carpet" That Turned Out to Be a Precarious Patch.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—Years ago a hard-boiled editor who is now in Washington fixed me with a baleful eye and said: "Mister Cub, people like to read about a lot of things, but the things they like best are food and money. They may not think this is true, but it is true. They are always interested in food and money. Remember that."

That was a long time ago. And today comes a note from him, saying: "I'll be in your town Thursday and I'm not interested in choruses or looking out of skyscraper windows. Just lead me to a nice, quiet place where the emphasis is on the dinner."

Well, I ought to give him a big build-up and then take him to the noisiest honky-tonk in town and get him all on greasy, poorly prepared hot-dogs.

BUT I won't. I'm going to take to what in this correspondent's opinion is the most gratifying restaurant in all New York to dine. It's a Swedish restaurant, where there are no penny choruses, no comedians, no scintillating stars of the theatrical world, no giggling debutantes getting their noses tickled with champagne.

The only thing in the world to recommend it is (1) its food, and (2) its service.

You drift in, say, about eight o'clock. And you give your hat to a Viking's daughter, and then a nice person in a perfectly casual way says: "Good evening," and leads you to a comfortable table. And you sit down. You sit down in a chair that is actually comfortable.

Then, when the passing thought that a few hors d'oeuvres might be acceptable prods your attention, you get up—unhurriedly of course—and wander over to a sea of complex, undefinable, nameless, but tasty dishes. There are perhaps two hundred of these to choose from, and so you make a careful circumference of the table, piling your plate with far more than you really desire, and back to your nice comfortable chair you go, there to munch and taste and toy with them until the main dinner comes along.

THE dinner! This is a simple but elegantly prepared dinner of your own choice of meats and vegetables. But, alas, you have that putting away a duck, or shall we say a portion of surmulet, Virginia ham, is quite out of the question. But you touch a steak with your knife and it falls open. It is so delicious and tender it melts in your mouth.

So you quite contentedly sit there and make a supreme pig of yourself. You keep on until it is past the point of being funny. Of course, there is much that you can not possibly make way with (a pity, too) and this is especially true in the Swedish restaurants.

Plans Made for Mt. Marion Fair

Woodstock, June.—Plans for the July 4th fair at the Mt. Marion Reformed Church carry the announcement that another distinguished speaker will this year be present, following the precedent set last year, when President Roosevelt attended and spoke to the several thousands of persons assembled.

This year the speaker will be a woman, Dr. Mary E. Woolley, long president of Mount Holyoke College, and prominently identified in recent years with world peace movements. She will speak in the church on the general topic of world conditions as they relate to the objective of world peace.

The exact title of her address has not yet been given.

It will be recalled that, in response to a letter from Mrs. Warren DeWitt Myer of Mt. Marion, chairman of the fair, the President last year did the almost unprecedented thing of accepting a personal invitation, and attended the fair more in the spirit of the good neighbor than of the overworked head of the government.

Most of whose acts must of necessity be of official and political significance. Between four and five thousand persons were present on the grounds to hear him speak last year.

With today's unsettled conditions in Europe, conditions that would seem to be a more imminent threat of war than we have experienced since 1918, and when might so easily involve America again in a foreign war, such a comprehensive discussion of these conditions, and such an ardent plea for peace as Dr. Woolley gives will, the chairman feels, be of vital interest to the entire surrounding community. Arrangements are, therefore, to be made for a crowd much smaller than that of last year.

Looking And Listening
 VERY quietly, with scarcely a flutter of a feather, Christopher Columbus Crow went over toward the watch that was hanging on the wall. He could hear it from where he stood on the floor, but he wanted to get closer to it, to see what made it tick at it.

He pushed a small chair that was near by underneath the watch. His wings, he thought to himself, were powerful enough for that. Indeed, he had no fault to find with his wings at all. Then he perched on top of the chair. He put his ear close to the watch and its ticking was louder than ever.

"If I could only examine it," thought Christopher, for perhaps the tenth time, "I might be able to find out what makes it go."

With that he lifted the watch off the hook.

Maverick Plans Varied Program

Woodstock, June 2.—The Maverick Theatre in Woodstock will open on Thursday, June 23 with "The Play's the Thing," a comedy by one of Europe's leading dramatists, Ferenc Molnar. With a professional company of 25, new scenery and lighting equipment the Maverick Cooperative has found it possible to schedule several plays not generally seen in summer stock theatres. The most unusual of these is "The Cradle Will Rock," by Marc Blitzstein. This music drama was produced last season in New York by the Mercury Theatre group and was acclaimed by the critics as one of the most interesting and exciting plays ever seen in New York. The Maverick Theatre is one of a very few theatres which will be permitted to produce "The Cradle Will Rock" this year. Mr. Blitzstein and his managers feel that because the Maverick Cooperative has several outstanding musicians under its management the play and its musical score will be presented in a thoroughly competent manner. In order to accommodate the large numbers of persons who have already shown great interest in "The Cradle Will Rock," the theatre will give it for five instead of the usual four performances. "The Cradle Will Rock" will be given from Thursday, June 23, through Monday, July 4.

Another novelty on the Maverick Theatre schedule for the summer will be a revue to be given on Labor Day week-end. This musical, as yet untitled, will feature a swing band from New York, several radio network singers, dancers, the tunes of Alex Wilder who wrote music for such Broadway successes as "Three's a Crowd," and "Thumbs Up." The story will concern the present European situation.

The Maverick String Quartet will give a short concert before each play. This new organization will be composed of professionals now living on the Maverick. It will be directed by George Finkel, cellist, who was heard on the Maverick Sunday concerts and as soloist for the theatre last summer.

The complete schedule of plays is as follows, with opening dates for each: "The Play's the Thing," comedy by Ferenc Molnar, June 23; "The Cradle Will Rock," music drama by Marc Blitzstein, June 23; "The Ivory Door," comedy by A. A. Milne, July 7; "Blind Alley," melodrama by James Warwick, July 14; "The Physician in Spite of Himself," farce by Moliere, July 21; "Profile in Propinquity," drama by Denis More, a try-out, July 28; "Ode to Liberty," comedy adapted from the French by Sidney Howard, August 4; "Transition," drama by Cecil Hemly, try-out, August 11; "The Playboy of the Western World," comedy by John Synge, August 18; "The Adding Machine," drama by Elmer Rice, August 25; a revue as yet untitled, music by Alex Wilder, book by Marlon Sherman and Vince Hall.

A Dollar Down

Portland, Ore.—Glenn O. Holtz, in traffic court for failure to have his automobile inspected, protested a $3 fine was too heavy because he had sold the car. "Just deduct the $3 from the money you got for the car," Municipal Judge Julius Cohn ordered.

"But I only got $2," Holtz said. He served a day in jail.

Indoor roller skating has recently become one of Shanghai's most popular sports, replacing tea dancing in several popular cafes.

A REAL BABY THIS TIME

Clinton Chapter Meeting Was Held

A regular meeting of Clinton Chapter, O. E. S., was held last Friday when a degree was enacted by Janet Wesley, Mary Smith and Flora Ostrander, paying tribute to the mothers and daughters of the order, guests of the evening. A bouquet of iris furnished by Anna J. Boice was placed at the worthy matron's station. Following the enactment of the degree the honored guests were presented to the chapter by Vivian Kellenberger, W. M. The guests forming a semi-circle as they were introduced were each presented with a carnation, the daughters being given the honor of bestowing the flower on their mother. To the oldest mother present a very handsome bouquet was given.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served and the members and guests were given an opportunity to renew friendships and acquaintances. A handkerchief sale to take the place of the birthday bag was held under the direction of Lillian M. Boice with Marguerite Carnright and Almeda Gerlach as her assistants.

A chemist points out that the human nose contains the most perfect air conditioner known—in the space of less than a cubic inch.

A Scotch family lived in the apartment above. Many friends called and dances were held frequently.

Friend (to man below)—Doesn't all that noise disturb you?
Man—No, when we want to stop their dancing all we do is to turn off the radio.

Most of us are gradually reaching the conclusion, long realized by wise men, that property rights and human rights are as inseparable as justice and wisdom. We are learning that if property rights are destroyed, human rights will not remain long with us.

Junior was not prone to over-exercise in the classroom. Therefore his mother was both surprised and pleased when he came home with the announcement: Junior—I got a hundred this morning.

Mother as she kissed the boy tenderly—That's lovely, dear. What was it in?
Junior—Fifty in composition and 50 in grammar.

She—You remind me of the ocean.
Young Man—Wild, romantic, restless—
She—No, you just make me sick.

And So On Forever!

We are building a bigger navy because the man next door has gathered a bigger navy than the one we had before.

When we had a bigger navy than the man who lives next door. So the cycle keeps on cycling. I wonder with a grin. Where we'll ever find the water to float these navies in?

Henry—I'm going to study medicine. I'm going to become a great horse specialist.

Albert—Well, you're certainly got a great head for it.

If our hands could only move as actively as our tongues, what wonders we could accomplish. If our performances were only equal to our promises, what successes we would register. So let's say less and do more, then perhaps we shall be getting somewhere.

The story is told of the Kentucky colonel who had an argument with the devil. The devil said no one had a perfect memory. But the colonel maintained that there was an Indian on his plantation who never forgot anything. The colonel agreed to forfeit his soul to the devil if the Indian ever forgot anything.

The devil went to the Indian and said: Devil—Do you like eggs?
Indian—Yes.
The devil went away.
Twenty years later the colonel died. The devil thought, "Aha, here's my chance." He came back to earth and presented himself to the Indian. Raising his hand, he gave the tribal salutation. "How?"
Indian (replying quick as a flash)—Fried.

At The Theatres

Today

Broadway: "The First Hundred Years" and "Rhythm on Parade" as a stage attraction. Robert Montgomery and Virginia Bruce are the principals in the picture at the Broadway, the story of a kept husband who rebelled successfully against his fate. Helen Cashin's revue "Rhythm on Parade" is an added feature on the program with a cast of over a hundred and spotlighting Jane Ball, Uster county's first Apple Blossom Queen.

Kingston: "Divorce of Lady X" and "Rawhide." Excitement in a London for done in technicolor and starring Merle Oberon is offered in the Kingston's first feature while Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees goes western in "Rawhide," as nimble and virile a story of the great open spaces as one could choose.

Orpheum: "I'll Take Romance." Grace Moore of the Metropolitan sings beautifully in this story of a singer who has romantic troubles along with her great talent. The show is a blend of opera and modern music with much comedy and a capable cast of assisting players.

Flashes of Life
Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

He Wouldn't

Philadelphia—Morris Nash, a janitor, received a telegram telling him he had won $50,000 on his Sweepstakes ticket.

After the shock wore away, he checked with the telephone company and was told the message was "somebody's joke".

Nash didn't think it was funny.

Vital Statistics

Memphis—Albert H. Johnson, 54, clerk in the license bureau here, doesn't mix pleasure and business.

Johnson estimates he has issued 20,000 marriage licenses but never has wed, 10,000 fishing and hunting licenses but has never been on a hunting or fishing trip, and 100,000 automobile licenses but doesn't own a car.

Flashaway Squawk

Kansas City—Andy Collins, owner of a service station, fixed that squeak in his automobile.

When he hoisted his car on the grease rack a mother sparrow flew out with three young from their nest between the gasoline tank and frame of the car. Collins removed the nest.

HOLLYWOOD—Anyone aspiring to oriental starrng roles in Hollywood movies had better tell the stork to drop him off in Sweden, Hungary, Los Angeles, Rumania or the place where Austria used to be.

Hollywood hasn't had a real orient-born star since Sessue Hayakawa returned to his Japanese homeland, apparently to stay. Keye Luke, who is Charlie Chan's No. 1 son in Hollywood, was born in China but reared in America and he's practically as American as your next-door neighbor. Anna May Wong is Chinese—but born in Los Angeles.

A short history of the Shavuoth festival. On Shavuoth, forefathers went up to the temple at Jerusalem, bringing as an offering baskets filled with the first ripened grain and fruit. Shavuoth also commemorates the day on which the forefathers standing at the foot of Mt. Sinai, received the Ten Commandments about 3250 years ago.

Battered Hat Returns Home After World Tour

St. Louis, Mo.—A battered felt hat which took a ten-months tour around the world, is back in the hands of its owner, David J. Boto, railway express tractor operator.

On May 26, 1937, Boto decided the hat had served him well and deserved a trip in its old age. So he pasted a letter to expressmen to keep it moving around the world, handed it to an express car messenger and told him to forward it on a cruise by way of the first boat out of New York.

When it returned to St. Louis tags and express marks indicated the hat passed through New York, Iceland, Norway, Russia, Hongkong, San Francisco, Las Vegas, Portland, New York again, Buffalo and Cleveland. It traveled by air, rail and water.

GOLDEN GLOW SALAD

Graduating with Honors

Graduation week will be an hilarious one in most communities; but even so, there's an opportunity to make it an even happier one. Why not have a little party for classmates, or class officers, the sorority or fraternity organization, or just a little get-together of friends who may be journeying down many different paths during the summer vacation months?

The party need not be elaborate and refreshments should be simple, yet in keeping with the occasion. I'd suggest a Golden Glow Salad with hot rolls or muffins, cake and iced tea, hot chocolate or coffee, depending on the ages of the youngsters who will attend. Here's the recipe for the salad.

GOLDEN GLOW SALAD
1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin, 1/4 cup cold water, 1 cup hot pineapple juice, 1/4 cup mild vinegar, 1/2 cup orange juice, 1/4 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup grated raw carrot, 1 cup oranges, cut in small pieces, 1/4 teaspoon salt, lettuce and mayonnaise.
Pour cold water in bowl and sprinkle

Hint

Use the same kind of white cleaner on suede hats that you use on suede shoes. With an emery board, brush up parts that have become matted down. Then use the cleaner. Stuff the hat so that it will retain its shape, and dry by hanging. When dry, rub carefully with a nail brush.

gelatin on top of water. Add sugar, salt and hot pineapple juice and stir until dissolved. Add orange juice and vinegar. Cool. When jelly begins to stiffen, add remaining ingredients. Turn into mold that has been rinsed in cold water and chill. Unmold on lettuce and serve with mayonnaise.

Cereal with Dried Fruits

When cooking cereals for little folks, be sure to season them as carefully as you would for adults. Use boiling water, season slightly with salt and add cereals as directed on the package. Ten minutes before cereal is finished cooking, add dried apricots, prunes, raisins or dates which have been soaked for a few minutes. Complete cooking and serve with butter, or cream and sugar, as preferred. A good proportion to use is 1/2 cup of fruit to 1 cup of dry cereal.

Polly, Put the Kettle On!

Preserving time is here. Many homemakers find "excuses" for making preserves of one kind or another each month in the year; but for strawberry lovers, the preserving season starts with the finding of these crimson beauties at popular prices in the corner grocery—or if you're so fortunate as to have a patch of your own . . . but why go on? You know the answer, I'm sure. And besides, it's recipes you'll be more interested in.

STRAWBERRY JELLY

4 cups berry juice, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 8 cups granulated sugar and 1 bottle fruit pectin.

Measure sugar and fruit juices into large saucepan and mix. Bring to boil over hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1/2 minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin or seal with cellophane closures. Yield: 12 glasses.

RED RASPBERRY AND CURRANT JAM

1 pint red raspberries, 1 pint red currants, 6 cups granulated sugar.

FACES REVEAL THE REAL PERSON; CHARACTER WRITTEN IN FEATURES

What's Behind His Forbidding Manner?

His manner freezes you! But it. But later you were shocked his face says the man behind it is really friendly, likable.

Amiability is implied by his rounded chin. The flexible mouth hints a generous nature; the fairly large eyes, courage and reliability.

If you broke through that stand-offish manner, which is really shyness, you'd find a friendly, warm heart.

What fine types you can pass by, what worthless people you can befriend if you've no clue to their real selves except their surface manners.

Perhaps you've been charmed by a genial fellow at a party. His lively patter made him the life of to catch him in an unscrupulous trick. All the while the danger signals were in his face for you to read.

His eyes shifted constantly—deceitfulness. He only half opened his mouth as he talked—secretiveness. His geniality itself was obviously affected, for his expression changed with each person he spoke to, hinting he could "put on" a manner or an attitude at will.

What feature is most important in reading faces? It's risky to judge by one feature. A woman with a sharp angular jaw may be a nagger. But chances are she isn't unless she also has lines of bitterness about her mouth, the steel cold eyes usual with cruel disposition.

In our 8-page leaflet, READING CHARACTER AND ABILITY FROM FACES, a well-known psychologist shows how to read faces from features and eyes, nose, mouth, chin, jaw, and business contacts.

Plan Art Shows For Woodstock

Woodstock, June 2—Directors of the Woodstock Artists Association are meeting tonight to plan exhibitions for the coming season. It has been the gallery's custom in the past few years to hold five shows during the summer, starting at about the middle of June. These shows include juried shows of Woodstock artists' work, special exhibitions, and a director's exhibition. Last summer two of the shows were memorial exhibitions devoted one to the work of the late Arnold Wiltz, and the other to the late Bolton Brown. This year's first show is expected to open by June 20, although dates and number of shows have yet to be decided at tonight's meeting.

SHOKAN

Shokan, June 1—Miss Helen Matland, of New York, has arrived at the Matland family summer home in the village. Miss Matland plans to spend the entire summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Matland.

Miss Ruth Didier, of Flushing, spent the holiday with her aunt, Miss Edna Longyear.

There were no classes at the local school Tuesday, Mrs. E. C. Burgher, the teacher, being in attendance at the teachers' conference in Woodstock. Mrs. Burgher was accompanied to the neighboring village by Mrs. Eltha Quick, an Olive Bridge woman who has been teaching school for 39 years.

Mrs. Franklin Hyatt and son, Conrad, of West New York, have been visiting Mrs. Hyatt's sister, Mrs. Fred Aditt, and the latter's family.

Several of the tourist and boarding resorts did a good business over the week-end and holiday. At Henry Carlson's Tonche Rest the cabins were occupied, while at Arthur Myers' place in the opposite end of the village, the two cabins, trailer and main house were filled with guests. Also, there were a number of city folks at Grossman's farmhouse on the north boulevard.

Miss Marjorie Davis of Kingston spent Monday with friends and relatives in this section.

Jesse Shurtz and Clyde Winchell were among the local war veterans marching in the big parade in Kingston Monday. Justin Bell, a Hurley resident, who enlisted from Olive, also joined the Legion group in the parade. Joseph Rolly, New York city newspaper employee of many years standing, came up to his summer home in the village for the holiday.

A local marriage of June 2, 1870, was that which united Benjamin Secor and Eliza Windrum, both of Olive. The ceremony was performed at Shokan by the Rev. J. L. Ketcham, pastor of the M. E. Church. Mr. and Mrs. Secor, who in their declining years resided on what is now the Nelson Bell farm, were the parents of Robert Secor and the late Loren P. Secor of Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dulatt attended the Memorial Day exercises at Phoenicia. Mr. Dulatt is a member of the Phoenicia Legion Post.

George Windrum of Brooklyn has been visiting his aunt, Mrs. Jennie Green.

Mrs. Frank Sharwell of Norfolk, Va., has arrived at the home of her parents for her annual summer sojourn in Shokan. Mr. Sharwell, secretary of the Norfolk Y. M. C. A., accompanied his wife here and returned home Tuesday.

Ward Matthews of Kingston was numbered among the former Olive residents, who spent the holiday in Shokan.

Mrs. Katherine McCausland of Kingston and daughter, Madam Marie Castello of New York, called on Paul James, local merchant, Monday.

Larry Brandt of Brooklyn was at the Olson camp over the week-end.

The new baseball grounds on the McKelvey flats is being further improved by the addition of a substantially built board and netting fence behind the diamond. A grandstand and score board have also been erected on the field.

Mr. Albert Wallerstein and daughter, Anita, of New York, were at their summer home in the village for the holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wallers of New York were week-end guests at the home of Mrs. Anner Longyear on the old state road.

Mr. and Mrs. James Armstrong of Arlington, N. J., spent the holiday with Mrs. Armstrong's father, Louis Thiel.

White lines were painted on the concrete pavement in the village Tuesday in preparation for the heavy summer travel on Route 28.

Noteworthy front-yard flower displays in the west-end include that at Mountain Laurel Lodge where Mrs. C. G. Fuller has several beds of iris, both purple and yellow, now in bloom.

Temple Emanuel Coming Services

Services will be held at Temple Emanuel on Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Rabbi Bloom will preach on the theme, "New and Old Forms in Religious Life."

Tonight, the Talmidim will meet at Rabbi Bloom's residence.

Prayer Meeting

All members of the Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church are prayerfully urged to be present at the prayer service this evening. The topic will be "Three Years at Franklin Street Church." Immediately after the service the last members conference of the conference year will be held. The contest given for the benefit of the General Church was a decided success.

Veterans Who Lost Their Lives at Sea Honored

The soldier and sailor dead who lost their lives at sea were honored with impressive services at Kingston Point where the annual ceremony of strewing flowers on the waters of the Hudson was carried out. Shown above are members of Ladies' Auxiliary, Tappen Camp, No. 53, Sons of Union Veterans, who conducted the services.

Tom Mix Circus Here on June 9

Riding high in his silver-plated saddle, astride his new horse, Warrior, Tom Mix, cowboy star, will thunder into the arena of his own big circus which comes to Kingston for afternoon and night exhibitions, Thursday, June 9.

The vast spread of white canvas will be erected on the Powell circus grounds where exhibitions will take place at 2 and 8 p. m. Tom Mix heads the big show and this year is presenting his talented daughter, Miss Ruth Mix, who is a star in her own right. Other new features include the famous Clarksons, England's premier bare back riders, the Helen Ford polo stars, Karin and her flying ballet of Hollywood girls, the Aerial Arleys and Flying Comets, Irma Ward, diminutive aerial star, the Morero-Saville troupe from old Mexico and scores of other new acts. The circus is sponsored by the Excelsior Fire Company and will come here from Albany where it exhibits on June 8. Hoover Directing Florida Kidnap Search, at Miami

Princeton, Fla., June 2 (AP)—J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, took charge of the James Bailey Cash, Jr., kidnaping case today while small boats and divers augmented the huge posse combing this area in the rain for a trace of the 5-year-old victim.

Arriving at Miami from Washington, Hoover hastened immediately to the FBI office in a downtown skyscraper where agents have been questioning several suspects for 24 hours. He refused, like his subordinates, to discuss the case.

Hundreds of men in khaki uniforms and hunting dogs, many with pistols at their belts, assembled at dawn and were taken out in farm trucks to the spots assigned for the second day of the search.

Hunt Is Northward
The hunt was extended northward through palmetto thickets, weeds and flat truck farm lands. The senior Cash and his wife remained secluded in their apartment building. It was learned that the anguished mother, who had been prostrate with grief, finally was sleeping.

The augmented searching force took the field at dawn, concentrating on areas north of the Cash home, the country southward having been combed yesterday. Nine police radio cars from Miami cruised back roads, picking up instructions broadcast from headquarters established in a vegetable warehouse here and relaying them to the posse.

The federal men centered efforts on tracking down the abductors, who accepted a $10,000 ransom payment without returning the victim.

Several In Custody.
In their custody were several persons—no outsider knew exactly how many—and a number of dogs regarded as clues. But if the government's "kidnap squad" already knew who took young Cash from his bedroom last Saturday night it was a closely-guarded secret.

Sam Bennett of Fort Pierce, District American Legion Commander, announced 1,000 Legionnaires would join the spreading hunt early today, augmenting the hundreds of armed men who yesterday beat over palmetto groves and truck lands.

An indication of what the F. B. I. men think the searchers might find was contained in final instructions of E. J. Connelly, head of the justice department forces, to the posse.

"We must face the strong possibility this little boy will be found dead," Connelly told the posse leaders. "If you see signs of freshly disturbed dirt—dig. Take your time and dig deeply. Look well in every canal you pass, and in every clump of bushes. Overlook nothing."

Neighbor Questioned.
One of those questioned in F. B. I. headquarters at Miami yesterday was M. P. Braxton, unemployed carpenter and a Princeton neighbor of the Cash family. He was taken into custody yesterday after the agents conferred with the sorrowing father and mother.

There was no confirmation or denial of reports that others taken to Miami were a relative of Braxton, a truck driver, a soft drink stand operator, a fisherman and a man wanted at Homestead for automobile robbery. The Miami Herald said the operator of a Miami night spot was questioned also.

W. P. Cash, the boy's uncle, said last night he thought even the parents had given up hope.

Marriage License Obtained.
Norwalk, Conn., June 2 (AP)—Ily Pons, opera star, and Andre Kostelanetz, orchestra conductor, applied here today for a marriage license. It was announced by Town Clerk Clayton F. Gregory. He said they gave no indication as to the wedding date, under a Connecticut law they must wait at least five days. Miss Pons gave her age as 37 and Kostelanetz said he was 36. The opera star established residence here more than a year ago.

Two Scheduled To Die.
Ossining, N. Y., June 2 (AP)—Two Brooklyn men are scheduled to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing tonight—one for the rape-slaying of an 8-year-old girl, the other for participation in the Sam Drankman murder. Lawrence Marks, 49, will go to the chair for the killing of Paula Maragna. The body of the child, strangled, attacked and tossed onto a baby carriage, was found in the cellar of her Brooklyn tenement home last July 21. Marks was arrested within a week and convicted last fall. The other condemned man is Fred J. Hull, 54. Hull was convicted of second degree murder but was granted a new trial which resulted in a first degree conviction.

Strawberries, Ham and Eggs
For a savory and colorful meat platter, try this new version of ham and eggs—that good old tasty favorite—fixed in a new and quite intriguing manner. The ham itself is new because this is a thick slice of one of those ever-so-modern tender, flavorful hams that cook in one-fourth less time. A one to two-inch slice may be baked in the oven allowing only 22 minutes per pound. About 5 minutes before the ham is done, arrange strawberries around the edge. Sprinkle the ham and berries with sugar and bake to melt the sugar and glaze the berries. The fresh strawberry garnish gives an added dash of color and zest to the combination.

Vegetables with Appeal
You won't need any recipe to prepare a vegetable plate having appeal if you follow a few simple rules. First of all,

Fines of $300,000
Madison, Wis., June 2 (AP)—Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone today assessed fines of $300,000 and $25,000 costs against 15 major oil companies and 11 of their officials on charges of illegally fixing the margin of profit for independent, wholesale gasoline jobbers in the midwest.

Squire Revises Levine Theory

New Rochelle, N. Y., June 2 (AP)—Revising an original police theory, Dr. Amos O. Squire, Westchester county medical examiner, said today he was convinced that kidnapers decapitated 12-year-old Peter Levine before dumping his body into Long Island Sound.

Dr. Squire said a check of 1,200 decaying cases had failed to disclose a single instance in which a head had become detached from a body by natural causes after an immersion of only three months.

A check of shoulder bruises or cuts in the boy's clothing, he said, eliminated the possibility a diving boat's propeller had severed the head.
Police and federal agents, still without a tangible clue to the identity of the slayer, continued drawing waters of the sound near where the boy's wire-bound torso drifted ashore last Sunday. They conceded that chances of finding the missing head, hands and feet were only "one in a thousand."

Detective Lieutenant George Rittenberger said police had discarded a theory that the boy, who disappeared February 24, had been slain by someone seeking revenge.
"It must have been done by someone close by—someone familiar with the waterfront," he said.

A VEGETABLE PLATE

do you always start vegetables cooking in boiling, salted water? Both of these "do's" are important if you would have vegetables retain their flavor and texture. Then there's a "don't" to bear in mind and that is, don't use too much water—just enough to prevent burning. And now for another "don't." Please don't cook vegetables any longer than absolutely necessary. If you can't remember, set an alarm clock—and if you don't know how long vegetables should cook, take out a cook book and look at the cooking chart. It's no sin to admit you don't know everything, and what with new vegetables becoming more and more popular, it's wiser to look in the book than it is to guess and have a squishy, soupy mess coming to the table.

Did you notice the lemon? Yes, my friends, it's a garnish and an attractive one at that. But it serves another purpose, too—a more important one. It adds flavor and zest to the vegetable, and has been cut in such a manner that it can be easily used by the eater. Many homemakers serve lemon both for flavor and appearance with meats, fish, vegetables, salads, soups, and of course with tea.

And one more thing that I mustn't forget is that each and every vegetable should be liberally covered with melted butter or margarine, and sprinkled with salt, pepper and paprika. Homemakers who use margarine frequently make a regular sauce of it, using salt, pepper and paprika with a little lemon juice as the seasonings. This they serve in a separate dish to be passed at the table.

When serving a vegetable plate, I like to start the meal off with a cream soup. For dessert, I choose a rich berry pie.

said. "It was an out-and-out ransom plot—simply to get money quickly."

The father, Murray Levine, New York attorney, tried several times to contact the kidnapers and pay a $30,000 ransom demand.

Capt. Herreshoff Dies, Ill One Year

concern until his retirement in 1924.

Boats Win Many Cups.
Herreshoff was most widely known for his cup defenders. Vigilant (1893), Defender (1895), Columbia (1899) and 1901, Reliance (1903) and Resolute (1920), but yachtsmen count scores of other reasons for remembering him.

From 1890 on Herreshoff yachts won seven of 13 Golet cup races, 22 out of 62 contests for the Astor cup, 14 of 24 King's cups, two of seven Cape May challenge cups and four of seven Bretton Reef cups.

Herreshoff's interest in ships never abated. In retirement he " tinkered " in a shop at his home in Bristol and his winter holidays in Florida were given largely to sailing a small boat which he handled as restfully as the cruiser craft which he had sailed as a boy on Narragansett Bay.

He was married twice. His first wife was Clara A. De Wolf of Bristol, to whom he was wed December 26, 1883. She died November 28, 1905, survived by a daughter and six sons. The second Mrs. Herreshoff was Ann the memorandum refers (Miller vs. Tuck, 95 A. D. 134), but to apply such a rule there must be some description, however vague, that parol proof of extrinsic circumstances and not of the agreement, will support with certainty. The letter in question does not contain a description sufficient even to justify the application of such a rule. It does not satisfy the principle that the agreement cannot rest in parol, but must express the essentials of the entire contract (Odell vs. Montross, 68 N. Y. 499; Cooley vs. Laddell, 153 N. Y. 596; De Goode vs. Burton, 141 A. D. 22; Savage vs. Weigel, 126 Misc. 618). What is said as to the real property is equally true of the personal property.

In view of this decision the other motion to dismiss presents a situation merely academic.

The district school teacher, Mrs. William Lasher, is driving a new Ford car.

Traffic may be HARD on streets,

but—

CONCRETE PAVEMENTS can "take it"

CONCRETE streets are an all-year asset to any city. But you'll appreciate them most when spring "break-ups" have made many streets impassable with mud, ruts, bumps and chuckholes. Concrete is an all-season pavement: always easy-riding; skid-resistant, wet or dry; good for decades with very little maintenance. No closing for spring repairs! Concrete not only saves on spring maintenance. It costs less to build than other pavements of equal load-carrying capacity. Be sure your streets are paved with concrete.

EMPLOY TOBOGGANS TO TRANSPORT ORE

Ingenious Mexicans Combine Business, Pleasure.

Dallas, Texas.—Two Americans with a mutual desire for speed aboard a sled, originated, so the record book reveals, mountain tobogganing. The time was back in 1890 and the place was St. Moritz, in the Swiss Alps.

But a quarter-century before that time, between 1850 and 1870, hardy Mexican miners scooped down the steep, snow-covered slopes of the volcanic mountain, Popocatepetl, using huge sacks of sulphur ore for toboggans, combining business with pleasure.

The two Americans, known in the record book only as "Mr. Wilson and Mr. Smith," went into tobogganing for the thrill of the sport. The Mexicans, no names known, went into tobogganing as a means of transportation.

Donald B. Mason, chemical engineer of the Freeport Sulphur company, brought the story to light here in a review of the world sulphur industry before members of the American Chemical society.

Goes Back to Cortez.

His story went back to 1519 when Hernando Cortez, Spanish conqueror of Mexico, sent an exploration party to the summit of Mount Popocatepetl, which at that time was in an unusual state of volcanic activity. Shortly afterwards Cortez found himself cut off from his armament supplies, chiefly gunpowder. Carbon could be obtained from charcoal. Saltpeter could be taken from nearby caves. With a supply of sulphur the expedition could make its own gunpowder. So a few of the hardiest descended 500 feet into the crater of the mountain, bringing out enough sulphur ore for 50 casks of powder.

The Cortez exploit represented the initial production of sulphur in the western hemisphere. It wasn't until 1850 that attempts were made to utilize commercially the sulphur ore to be found deep in Mount Popocatepetl. At various times, over a period of 10 or 15 years, sulphur was taken from the crater by means of windlasses mounted on top of the wall. Rope baskets were let down carrying miners who filled sacks with ore and were then hoisted back to the top.

Use Bags as Sleds.

Part of the transportation from the top of the crater down to the refinery was carried out by the miners using the bags of ore as sleds for a 3,000 foot section of the 17,000 foot journey. From the bottom of the toboggan run transportation was maintained to the base of the mountain on human shoulders. The two problems of transporting the sulphur from the crater to the rim and from the rim to the refinery have always balked commercial development of the deposit.

While the Cortez venture in sulphur "mining" took place more than 400 years ago, it was not until 1903, when the "hot water" method of melting the sulphur underground and mining it from gulf coast salt domes was introduced, that commercial mining of sulphur became successful on this side of the Atlantic ocean. Texas and Louisiana salt domes now account for nearly a third of the world production of sulphur from all sources.

16-Year-Olds Flocking to the Altar in England

London.—A boom in child marriages in England during 1936 is recorded in statistics of the registrar general in London. These show that 32 boys and 1,179 girls of sixteen—the lowest legal age for marriage in England—were married in that year, as compared with 19 boys and 814 girls in the previous year.

In 11 cases both bride and bridegroom were only sixteen, but in other cases the girls married husbands whose ages ranged up to twenty-five. None of the sixteen-year-old boys, however, married a woman over the age of twenty-two.

Man's Brain Is Unchanged in Size in 30,000 Years

Denver.—Although man may be getting taller and more portly than he was 30,000 years ago, his brain is no larger, according to Dr. Ralph Linton, professor of anthropology at Columbia university, who is conducting a lecture tour. The reason we know more than our ancestors did lies in the fact that there is more around us to learn, he said. Linton believes there is no intelligence difference between various races.

Antarctic Is Ours, Professor Declares

Philadelphia.—The South pole and the Antarctic continent belong to the United States, the American Philosophical society was told by Dr. William H. Hobbs of the University of Michigan. Dr. Hobbs said the continent originally was discovered by an American, but that a map of the Antarctic made by a New England sea captain was suppressed by Great Britain in 1822. England later issued a new map to give that country priority in the discovery, Dr. Hobbs said.

Fable Blows Up

Buffalo, N. Y., June 2 (AP).—Police Commissioner Glenn H. McClellan today ordered officers to arrest all drunks on sight. McClellan cited traffic figures showing 41 intoxicated pedestrians were injured and four killed last year in the city. "The fable of the drunken man's luck has been exploded," he said.

LEAD HUNT FOR BOY AND KIDNAPER

Heading a hunt hunt at Princeton, Fla., June 1 for 5-year-old Jimmy Cash and his kidnaper were E. J. Connolly (left), FBI inspector in charge of agents working on the case, and J. Fritz Gordon (right), Miami attorney and Connolly's local advisor. They are shown preparing a list of posse members for the search.

Karakul Lambs Black at Birth; Some Brown, White

Most Karakul lambs are coal black at birth. Still, it is not unusual for them to be brown, white or spotted. Regardless of the color the hair always is curly when the lamb comes into the world. The same lack of color uniformity also prevails in the matured herd, writes Addis Kelley in the Los Angeles Times.

The Karakul is the only sheep that produces four different types of fur: the broadtail, Persian lamb, Karakul and Astrakhan. In addition to the sale of the fur product, which requires no feed, always taken from the nursing young, the Karakul produces ten or more pounds of "hair" each year for each matured animal.

The "hair" is clipped each spring. It is used in making Bokhara, Afghan, Persian and other oriental rugs. Fabric is also made from the "hair." Manufacturers of the United States make Indian rugs and blankets. Great volumes of yarn are spun annually for domestic use in repairing and edging oriental products.

Karakuls are active, alert and particularly adapted to cleaning up noxious weeds and brush. They are the hardiest variety of sheep in the world. In fact they average double the age of other breeds.

Announces Plans to Wed

Springfield, Mo., June 2 (AP).—Horton Smith, professional golfer, said here last night he and Miss Barbara Louise Bourne, a granddaughter of the late Frederick Bourne, president of the Singer Sewing Machine Co., probably would be married in the fall.

Carpenter Questioned

M. F. Braxton (above), unemployed Princeton, Fla., carpenter, June 1 was picked up by FBI agents at Princeton and taken to Miami for questioning in connection with the disappearance of 5-year-old Jimmy Cash. Braxton was grabbed by the agents as he stood in the midst of a posse lining up in the search for the boy.

Presbyterian Pledge.

Philadelphia, June 2 (AP).—Commissioners to the 150th general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. carried home today a pledge to work and pray "for the speedy establishment of peace" between China and Japan. "Termining the war" "ruthless and barbarous," the committee on foreign missions, in a report presented at the final session yesterday, appealed for a "just peace," based on righteousness and brotherhood.

Beacon Man Succumbs

Beacon, N. Y., June 2 (AP).—Francis J. Moran, 27, of Beacon, died last night of injuries suffered yesterday morning in an automobile accident near here. Moran fell from the running board of a moving automobile, fracturing his skull.

Would Impeach Quezon

Manila, June 2 (AP)—Cardisco Lapus, Filipino Socialist leader, today demanded the arrest and impeachment of Commonwealth president, Manuel Quezon. Lapus resented Quezon's assertion yesterday that he intended to keep order if he had "no order to the killing of some people to do so" after 500 armed men forced the manager of a hacienda to rehire dismissed tenant farmers.

TRAPPED...with only one chance to ESCAPE!

A CLOSE CALL, as related by C. L. NUTTER of Providence, R. I.

1. "Driving along a right of way street, I caught up with a slow-moving line of cars.
2. "Seeing a stretch of clear road ahead, I pulled out to pass them after giving proper hand signal.
3. "While passing—a light delivery truck, disregarding a stop sign, dashed out of a side street.
4. "I had to get away fast. With Richfield's amazing pick-up I just made it!"

TWO THINGS WILL HELP YOU ESCAPE DANGER!

When the road seems clearest, the danger may be greatest! But trouble cannot strike if you aren't there to be struck. Protect yourself! First, with brakes that stop quickly—to keep you from getting into a jam. Second, with gasoline that starts quickly—to help you get out of a jam.

Richfield is that kind of gasoline. Its quick pick-up helps you avoid smash-up. So, drive carefully and... switch to richer Richfield! Switch to richer Richfield All-Weather Motor Oil, too. With these partners in power, you—and your family—can feel safer on today's much-travelled highways!

Western Bus After Trial Run

One of the air-conditioned busses of the Santa Fe Trailways, popular throughout the west, was demonstrated here this week for Lawrence Van Gonsle, superintendent of maintenance on the Adirondack Trailways, and it is his opinion that this sort of conveyance will be introduced in this sector when replacements are made. Here is the bus after a trial run with Raymond F. Schaffer, city passenger agent, Chicago; Earle Thompson, Tulsa, Okla., operator; M. W. Schwartz, New York, district passenger agent, and Lawrence Van Gonsle of the Adirondack Trailways. Air conditioning in this bus is perfected to the extent that one can smoke, with the windows closed.

Redeemer Host To 15 Churches

plify of His question: "When the Son of Man cometh, will he find faith in the earth?" It is entirely different from the dreams of so many would-be world reformers. When Jesus returns, will He find a world, a world where social justice has been established, where hours of toil have been shortened, where science and invention have taken the sting out of daily labor, where good housing and freedom from disease are a fact?

"Jesus without doubt would throw his influence on the side of every one of them. Yet none of them adequately expressed the desire of His heart.

"The faith He mean was a faith in God, whose love will lead to the final triumph of the Kingdom of God and all the purposes of God in the earth. The disciple of Jesus knows that he is not waging a losing battle. He is standing shoulder to shoulder with all the saints of God in all history in a tremendous conflict which will lead to the triumph of righteousness.

"It is this faith which the Christian Church preaches today. Jesus could have placed his major emphasis upon the social problems that existed in His time, but he chose to make faith supreme. The church can carry out His desire only as it continues to grow. The Anniversary Appeal is a step in that direction.

"All over the nation the Lutheran Church has planted missions. But these missions cannot work unaided. They need the help of churches already established. Only

Memorial Service Speaker

Above the Rev. Malachy O'Leary is shown as he addressed the large audience that attended the memorial service at the municipal auditorium last Sunday evening. The Rev. Father O'Leary, who is the assistant pastor of St. Mary's Church in Saugerties, pointed out the dangers inherent in Communism, Fascism and Facism.

then can they exercise the full influence in their communities. Only then can they do their share in bringing the Christian message of faith in God to the distracted world we know today.

Merle Oberon Sued Los Angeles, June 2 (AP)—Merle Oberon, screen actress, was sued for $5,480 today by Lyle W. Rucker, attorney, who claimed she had paid him only $6,000 of $11,480 fees due under terms of a settlement he effected with Solznick International Pictures, Inc. The movie concern, he stated, agreed to the settlement after giving the leading role in the picture "The Garden of Allah" to Marienne Dietrich, when it had been promised to Miss Oberon.

Kingston Business Men to Close Store

Alumni Auditorium for further ceremonies. The reviewing stand will be at city hall and the high school.

Long Line of March

The problems of getting underway so huge a parade were outlined by the Rev. Mr. Brown who stated that six times the parade plans had been changed. Because of the fact that many of the men in line are men over 50 years of age it was necessary to keep the line of march down. To form the parade uptown was out of the question because of lack of room, he said, and a march down the Broadway hill was too strenuous to make. The local committee had worked to have the line pass through the business sections but it had been found impossible.

There will be special trains from Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse bringing Sir Knights to Kingston. Special buses will bring delegations from closer points and it was expected that on the day of the parade there would be a great influx of wives and friends of the delegates to the city by all means of transportation.

The parade will require about an hour and a half to complete the line of march.

Tuesday there will be a riding exhibition at the armory by members of "C" Troop, New York State Police.

Favors General Decoration

After an explanation of the size of the affair the association went on record as favoring a general decoration of business places and the merchants endorsed the convention and agreed to assist financially to defray the expenses. While local donations solicited are small in amount the general committee is spending a considerable sum of money for the entertainment of guests and delegates. Hotels and rooming houses are co-operating and practically all of the delegates will be housed above the city hall.

The motion to close the stores on Monday afternoon, June 13, at 2:45 o'clock, for the remainder of the day was made by Al Mollott and unanimously voted.

Sam Bernstein brought up the question of holding the State Grange Convention in Kingston. This will be a three day convention attracting over 2,000 persons. Mr. Bernstein moved that the association write a letter to Harold V. Story, head of the Ulster County Pomona Grange, stating that the association endorsed any movement to bring the State Grange to Kingston, and expressing the desire of the organization to cooperate in any movement to have Kingston selected as the next meeting place.

A report was made that the Boy Scout parade on Saturday afternoon would pass through the uptown business section at approximately 5 o'clock.

Report on Solicitations

A report was made by Miss Reiter on the matter of program and ticket solicitation among the business houses of the city. In Newburgh, she reported, each member of the association displayed a card in the store stating that no solicitations for program advertising or similar solicitations were permitted and that application for such donations must be made to a secret committee by mail. Any request for such contributions was acted upon by the committee and if deemed proper the credentials of the Business Association were given to the solicitor and the stores were then canvassed. If the cause was not deemed proper the committee did not endorse the movement and members of the association did not respond to the request for donations.

No action was taken locally on the matter until additional reports were received from other cities. Several merchants reported that the demand for "program" advertising had fallen off considerably since the association began to investigate the matter and determine which causes were worthy and which were simply a "racket." The committee functioning were asked to continue their investigation and report back later.

Open Bids for Steel Balcony

Bids for erection of a steel balcony in the record vault at the County Clerk's office for additional storage room for record books were opened Thursday under the supervision of Supervisors Grimm, Elston and Lenahan, committee, and Clerk Fred Stang.

There were three bids submitted. Henry Swart submitted a bid of $1,550. W. E. Joyce Company, Inc., bid $2,230, and Clarence P. Hendricks bid $2,589. The three bids were referred to the committee and after an inspection the contract will probably be awarded within the next few days.

The Board of Supervisors authorized the work and made an appropriation some time ago after County Clerk James A. Simpson had called the attention of the board to the need for additional room for record books. It is planned to erect a steel balcony around the room upon which additional filing racks for the record books may be placed.

Purchases Old Colonial Home Here

There was much satisfaction to those interested in preserving the fine old properties of Kingston, over the announcement Tuesday that the old Sudam homestead property for nearly 70 years past known as the Van Leuven property corner of Wall and Main streets had passed into the hands of Fred J. Johnston of this city and would be preserved in demolition and possible use for purposes that would be greatly out of keeping with the character of the neighborhood.

Mr. Johnston, who has successfully conducted an antique shop in the Schultze building at 12 Main street for the past four years, was among the many who were greatly disappointed at rumors some months ago that the property would pass into the hands of an oil company the house torn down and a gas station erected. He made an offer for the property and later with the sympathetic cooperation of the recent owner, Cornelius Van Leuven, of Wilmington, N. C., succeeded through the agency of Frank S. Hyatt, 277 Park street, in successfully closing negotiations for the purchase of the property.

The new owner said yesterday that he proposed to occupy the residence as a home and for the accommodation of his antique business and that while he planned extensive improvements, they would be in the nature of restoration of the house to its original condition and furnishing and would not be a "remodeling". The only change that could come under the latter head, so far as planned, will be the removing of a couple of partitions in the extension on the north side of the house, so that this portion can be used for display of antiques. Mr. Johnston plans to use old wall paper throughout the house as far as possible and to furnish it with antique furniture, old rugs, crystal chandeliers, etc., in keeping with the period when it was built and first occupied. In about a month he will dispose of a quantity of antique articles and old furniture which have been left in storage there, at auction and immediately afterward plans to begin the work of restoration and renovation.

According to the Historical American Buildings Survey made under the auspices of the government, the house was built about 1800, is one of the few early frame houses left standing and is an interesting example of good Colonial architecture of the well-to-do citizen, with some exceptionally good exterior and interior details. It has been mentioned in several Ulster county histories.

There are two stories and a large attic, with an equally large cellar. The latter, with its plastered stone walls, was evidently once used as a bakery, as there is a large old-fashioned bake oven, now sealed up. The house is well preserved, clappedboard outside and with walls and ceilings plastered. New floors have been laid over the old ones in some of the rooms but there is plenty of evidence of the wide painted boards used originally throughout the house.

Besides the large halls and two bath rooms, there are 10 good sized rooms in the house, eight of them equipped with fireplaces opening into two mammoth chimneys. One of the outstanding features of the house is the fine mantel work and woodwork and the cornices that border the ceilings in the parlors on the first floor.

When the house has been redecorated and furnished, Mr. Johnston plans to open it to the public for inspection one day each week.

According to an account printed in the December, 1912, issue of Old Ulster, the present house stands nearly on the site of the stone house occupied as a home by Elias Hasbrouck, a captain in the Revolutionary Army. The house was one of those burned by the British October 16, 1777.

Later the property passed into the hands of the Elmendorf family and about the beginning of the 19th century John Sudam, a rising and brilliant young lawyer, who had married into the Elmendorf family, built the present large two-story frame dwelling on the corner, about on the site of the old stone house.

John Sudam, who among other accomplishments was an orator of ability, was a member of the State Senate, 1823-24, and again 1833-35. He was also a Regent of the University, to which position he was succeeded by his friend, Washington Irving. Sudam died in Albany, during the session of the legislature, April 13, 1835.

Vice President Martin Van Buren and Washington Irving, both intimate friends of Sudam, visited him in the old house in 1835. The Ulster Republican in its issue of September 18, 1835, noted that "Martin Van Buren, Vice President of the United States, and Washington Irving arrived in this village yesterday and tarried over night at the residence of the Hon John Sudam." They were to leave Thursday, but it was not until the next day that they left, going on to Orange county.

The property apparently remained in the Sudam family until 1888, as according to records in the county clerk's office, it was transferred in that year by Helen C. Sudam and husband to executors of the will of Barent Van Alstyne, late of Kinderhook. The latter, the next year, October 29, 1889, deeded the property to James Van Leuven, describing it as "premises known as the homestead lot of John Sudam." It has remained in the Van Leuven family since that time, until the recent transfer to Mr. Johnston.

During the past 11 years, until December last, the house was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. E. Van Dyke Basten. Mr. Basten being connected with the Van Leuven family.

Louisiana plans a public hunting ground on 35,000 acres of land leased to the state without charge by a lumber company. The land is in process of reforestation.

Girl Scout Rally At Camp Wendy, Wallkill, Saturday

The annual Girl Scout Rally will be held at Camp Wendy, Wallkill, on Saturday. It is hoped that all Girl Scouts and their parents will avail themselves of this opportunity of spending a pleasant day on the Borden estate, 15 acres of which are owned by the Ulster county Girl Scouts.

Scattered over these vast acres of a combination of lake, open and wooded land are five units: Brownies, Lost Boys, Pirates, Tinkerbell and Pioneers, divided according to the ages of the girls.

The Pioneer unit will be used for the first time by the Jolly Rogers. Experienced campers, lake swimmers and those interested in water nature had better sign up soon for this unit. Only 12 girls will be accommodated and only for the first camp-out. A three day canoe trip on the Wallkill will be a feature of this unit.

Members are asked to be on hand for the rally on Saturday. Buses will leave the Governor Clinton Hotel at 10 o'clock sharp. Summer campers and hikers are advised by the Girl Scouts to beware of the three "untouchables" if they would have a care-free summer. Three pesky little plants known as the poison ivy, poison sumac and the so-called poison oak can do a lot to make life temporarily miserable for those who even touch them.

These are the only three plants that are poisonous to touch throughout the country, warns Marie Gaudette, of New York city, national nature consultant for the Girl Scouts, and each one is a member of the same family. Instructors will tell the girls how to detect these plants and what preventive means to follow.

Blossoms, Leaves, Bark, Roots Used as Medicine

Since ancient times, man has had a high regard for flowers, leaves, tree bark and roots of all kinds as curatives for human ills. Medieval doctors were firmly convinced—as some Chinese doctors still are—that if any section of a plant resembled a part of the human body, it had a medicinal value for that part. Any heart shaped leaf, therefore, was part of a brew for heart trouble, and liverwort became a standard part of the treatment for diseases of the liver, notes a writer in Pathfinder Magazine.

America's herb boom started almost with the first settlers. Those who lived near Indian tribes found them using various plants for a variety of diseases, and they adopted the native usage. Until about 50 years ago, for instance, catnip was regarded as an aid to treat female disorders and to treat fevers of almost any description; many Americans chewed for toothaches. A concoction from larkspur seed was thought to cure asthma; later it was recognized merely as an insecticide.

Between 1880 and 1880, the peak of the boom, the New England members of a religious sect known as the "Shakers" had a virtual monopoly on the botanical drug business, shipping their products all over America and to foreign countries. At about the same time, shrewd promotion led ignorant Chinese to believe that ginseng, a common plant in the eastern United States and Canada, was a remarkable healer, and ginseng seeds literally became worth their weight in gold in northern China.

Some herbs are fragrant and sweet, and preparations of them are commonly used to coat pills. Others are mildly laxative in their effect, although herbs are not as widely used for diuretics as they once were. Many of them provide oils necessary to the preparation of liquid medicine. Further, the leaves and roots of many plants are poisonous and with a doctor's advice, a few of them may be used as emetics.

VITAL ORGANS KEPT ALIVE 11 1/2 YEARS

Artificial Heart Is Used in Scientific Tests

Philadelphia, Pa.—Eleven and a half years of life has been provided to vital human and animal organs in the artificial life chamber designed by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Dr. Alexis Carrel, the latter reported before the American Philosophical society.

Nine hundred experiments have been performed with the Lindbergh-Carrel artificial heart, which for the first time made it possible to keep whole organs alive indefinitely in a synthetic blood-substitute medium. Practically every important organ in the human and animal body has been kept alive during the experiments, Doctor Carrel reported.

The experiments as described by Doctor Carrel constitute veritable windows into life, through which the processes of the organs can be observed and their behavior can be studied.

Doctor Carrel said it was yet too soon to discuss the practicability of transplanting these organs into human beings as substitutes for diseased parts. It was indicated, however, that the experiments were a long step in that direction.

The organs and anatomical regions cultivated in the apparatus included: thyroids, parathyroids, sympathetic ganglia, salivary glands, mammary glands, livers, spleens, lymph glands, pancreas, adrenal glands, kidneys, hearts, lungs, ovaries, oviducts, uteri and pregnant uteri, testes, epididymides, arteries, veins, muscles, joints and fetal limbs, Doctor Carrel reported.

Studies are being made on human goiter and the effect of iodine on this condition. A human cancer of the thyroid gland is among the organs under observation. It is possible, Doctor Carrel declared, to study the arteries of the human heart. In this manner, it is hoped, new light may be shed on the nature and origin of coronary heart disease.

program on Friday night, and Ellis Bookwalter, boys' work secretary of the Kingston Y. M. C. A., will assist on Saturday.

President Overbagh, of the council, said today that he hoped that the people of Ulster and Greene counties will take this occasion to visit the state armory grounds in Kingston and there see the largest camp of its kind that has ever taken place in the history of Scouting in this territory.

Mr. Overbagh also went on to say that he hoped that on Friday, which will be the big day of the program, that everyone interested in boy development would take this opportunity to visit the big camp and see the various events between 9 30 in the morning and 10 o'clock in the evening.
